My deepest sincere sympathy to Harllen's mother, Sharon L. Williams. May Harllen's humble spirit live on in his daughter Aleyha and her beautiful little smile. Be comforted knowing his pain and troubles are now behind him. Nothing can comfort the heart of a mother loosing her child but God. Allow him to receive your son and heal your heart. May those that truly loved your son comfort you during this time of grief.

May God bless and keep you all, Williams Family. We are praying for you and trusting that Holy Spirit, the Great Omnipresent Comforter will keep you safe – emotionally, physically and especially spiritually because the enemy of God would destroy you given the slightest opportunity. From personal experience, I can tell you that He keeps His promises to be a husband to the widow and Father to the orphans. There is no pain like that of losing a child. Sharon, my dear sister, my heart is breaking with yours. What I can tell you for sure is that He will never leave you nor forsake you. He is your Strong Comforter and He alone can give you peace. God adores you. His joy is your strength and His strength is made perfect in your weakness and that is how you will make it through this devastating loss of your beloved son. Your friends love you too. May you all know God's amazing love for you. Love, Shari for the Draayer family

I remember the day you started walking, you were staying with us in Cochranville. When we all went to bed, I went into the bedroom and asked Aunt Judy would you still remember the next day, and she said of course you would. So when the next day came I got up snuck in the room around 5am took you down stairs and stood you up, not knowing you were still sleep drunk, and tried to make you walk. You fell down twice, I started crying, which gave myself away. Aunt Judy came down, I got in so much trouble for getting you up, she took you by the hand y'all walked in the kitchen she kept go of your hand, and you walked to the chair. She looked at me and said see, I told you he wouldn't.

The Family loves you and misses you and we wish we would have recieved and invitation. But thats life. We know you can feel the love from us. We really miss you, and we are so confused. How you go from getting better to being gone. The candle is lit to match the stinky dandelions you use to love to pick
