Being a good listener doesn't always come naturally. Listening is a gift Chandler gave to others. Chandler truly listened and heard what was being said. He received those of us he listened to with grace, dignity and respect. He focused on the person who was speaking. It takes a compassionate, perceptive, sympathetic, understanding man to be a great listener. Chandler possessed all of these qualities. He made a difference in many lives. We know he will be remembered with love and missed by many. Where ever a beautiful soul has been there is a trail of beautiful memories. Judy & Jay Saxena
