I was sorry to learn that Barb had passed from my mother, who worked with her decades ago at a retail clothing store. When they worked together at that store, I was a little kid in elementary school who would sometimes spend who evenings lurking around that little boutique store in the mall. All my mother's coworkers from there were lovely, but I specifically remember how kind and approachable Barb seemed to me and all my chattering little kid interests, and wanted to pass along how grateful I am to remember her that way - as a warm and curious soul who was always genuinely interested to know what was happening at school or what the latest cool book was.
