“ I just found about Mike. I knew Mike through business. I was a client of the computer software company he worked for. I loved, just loved talking to him. To begin with, he was so very smart. So totally knowledgeable and helped me with so much. But more importantly, Mike was a very funny man. So totally and completely funny. We laughed and joked all the time. He had a way with words- and was so quit witted, to a fault. We met only a few times, and the last time was when my partner and I went to a wedding in Naples, Florida. He and Dana and me and my partner went for lunch. And it was really nice to spend time with them. Not long after, Dana passed away, and he was buried here on Long Island- and I was sure to be there for Mike at that time. It turns out that Dana is buried only a few yards from where my parents are buried out on Long Island. I told Mike I'd be sure to visit Dana's grave whenever I was there. And I have done just that. Recently I made a mental note to call Mike. And I never got to doing that. Another life lesson. Don't put off things like connecting with people. You just don't know.

My deepest condolences to Mike's family. I know that he is surely missed.

“ We will never forget going to uncle Tony's and Aunt Doris's when we were children. We'll always remember seeing Michael with bosco and the kicks we got from that cuckoo clock. We have fond memories of spending holiday dinners with Michael at our mother's house and insanely long talks on where we've had the best long island iced teas. Holidays in Florida will never be the same. This past Thanksgiving we were all together. When we thanked Michael (and Dana) for always looking out for our Mother since she moved to florida his response was "no thanks needed, that's what family does". This just sums up the type of person our cousin was. Michael, you will be greatly missed. Our thoughts are with family during this difficult time.

“ We all shared a lot of laughs when we would visit Florida, and having our night out to dinner at Ariani's. So many more good times missed out on by you leave us all so soon. Condolences to Frank and family during this time, and prayers for you, Michael. You are--and will always-- be greatly missed.

“ Whenever I look out our front window or am outside, I expect to see you walking Gracie and Blondie. I miss seeing you . . . I miss our chats. There is a definite void in the neighborhood.
